AND NOT EVEN A TOWN PUMP TO HELP THINGS

Approach of the Long Drought Recalls The Happy Days of Another Era

With prospects of a national dry spell of considerable length beginning July 1, it is positively alarming to note that Elizabeth City hasn't even a town pump to relieve the thirst of its visitors from the rural districts and neighboring cities. With the cocktail and the gin-fizz treading the way that leads to oblivion along with all other beverages of alcoholic nature, the sparkling and transparent fluid known variously as aqua pura, the nectar of the gods, or just plain ordinary water, is beginning to acquire a new and general popularity as a drink, even among those who have long looked upon water as a fluid suitable only for sailing boats upon, or occasional washing purposes.

Fifty years ago Elizabeth City had a town pump. It was a big wooden pump with a long handle, and stood on a large platform at the northeast corner of the courthouse square. Any one who was short the price of a beer went there for a drink, and before the days of the railroad it was a public gathering place, where everybody was pretty sure of finding everybody else, and where questions of state and the current affairs of the day were lengthily discussed. Elizabeth City was even then the metropolis of northeastern North Carolina, and the headquarters of the leading political faction of the time. Long-haired orators in their swallow-tail coats and plug hats could find no better point of vantage to harangue the public with flowery phrases than the corner of this high platform upon which stood that ancient and venerable institution, the town pump.

Times have changed sadly. Today the visitor who wants to get a drink of water without obligation to anybody must either take a swig out of the municipal horse trough, or go without until he can get to a town where water is on tap in the public square. With water rapidly becoming the national beverage, Elizabeth City should fall in line with other progressive cities and provide public drinking fountains at convenient places for the everlasting benefit of the thirsty.

HYDE COUNTY SCORES AGAIN IN MARKETING

Hyde County scored another point in agricultural progress last week, when, under the direction of County Agent Murray, nineteen farmers shipped 155 lambs to the Philadelphia market, obtaining an increased price of $639 over that offered by the local market. This cooperative shipment has again demonstrated the financial advantage that Tar Heel farmers may expect from cooperative marketing of their livestock. So well pleased were the shippers with the outcome of this marketing project that they are now making definite arrangements for sending out another double deck shipment within the next few weeks.

The lambs were sent from Hyde county to Elizabeth City by boat, where they were loaded on the train under the direction of Charles S. Jones, Specialist in Marketing Livestock.

Clown and Pantaloon.

According to a little book on symbolism which Lady Glenconner had privately printed for her friends, the harlequinade is of special origin: The oracles through which the harlequin (who is the Unknown) and columbine (the Soul) pass are the tribulations of the spirits in the material phase of existence. The clown represents the world and the pantaloon the body. Possibly, many clowns and pantaloons all over the country are unaware of this.

Peculiar Bush Beans.

Careful tests have shown that certain kinds of bush beans which as a rule bear one good crop of early beans and then cease to produce, will, when started in flowpots under glass, produce a fine crop much earlier than those planted in the open soil, and continue to produce beans all through the summer up until the vines are cut by frost in autumn. It is supposed the age of the plant makes the difference, as the one started under glass is older before it bears any beans at all.

Stones for Rosaries.

The rosaries sold at Kandahar are extensively manufactured from soft, crystallized silicate of magnesia. This is quarried from a hill about thirty miles northwest of the city, where soapstone and alabaster are also obtained in considerable abundance. The stone varies in color from a light yellow to a bluish white, and is generally opaque.

Point She Noticed.

At a movie a young miss amused those near her with her remarks, showing her keen observation and interest in the picture. Her best remark came when an empty jarikisha pulled by a Japanese coolie came down the street and stopped before a house. She piped up in a shrill voice: "He lost his horse."

Giving and Doing.

It is the giving up of life that saves it. When we stop calling it our own, seeking to hoard it and enrich it for ourselves, and begin bestowing it in loving interest and service upon others, we find that it has suddenly become richer and stronger than ever before.

Wolsey's Disinfectant.

Whenever Cardinal Wolsey granted an audience to the people, or whenever he went anywhere where he was apt to have to mingle with a crowd, he carried an orange that had been especially prepared for him by removing the pulp and putting a sponge soaked with disinfectant and sweet smelling spices inside it.

One's Identity.
There is, in sanest hours, a consciousness, a thought that rises, independent, lifted out of all else, calm, like the stars, shining eternal. This is the thought of identity—yours for you, whoever you are, as mine for me.

MICKIE SAYS

HONEST, I HATE TO BRAG, BUT IF YOU AIN'T HAVIN' YOUR PRINTING DONE HERE, I JEST WISH YOU'D ASK SOMEBODY WHO IS, ABOUT WHAT THEY THINK OF OUR WORK AND OUR SERVICE. IF YOU DO, WE'LL HAVE ANOTHER NEW CUSTOMER!

Were on the Way.

Virginia was greatly interested in the setting of duck eggs. She was visiting her aunt shortly afterward and her aunt asked her if she had any little ducks yet. "No, Aunt Mollie," seriously, "but we have got lots of them planted."

Real Moral Courage.
When you are so devoted to doing what is right that you press straight on to that and disregard what men are saying about you, there is the triumph of moral courage.—Phillips Brooks.

No Words Wasted.
The shortest review of a book that we have heard of was that published in an American paper recently. After mentioning the title, the author, and publisher, it passed judgment in the one word, "Shake."

You will find here the largest collection of Sterling and Plate Silver flatware to be found in any similar institution in Carolina.
